

Contents

Introduction. The ideal of Bildung and the project of a learning society . . . . .	9
1 The concept of learning society : from educational utopia to managerial ideology . .	17
2 Dewey's reconstruction of self-cultivation: the reflexive purpose of education . . . .	33
2.1 Humboldt's theory of Bildung and the purpose of self-cultivation . . . .	37
2.2 Dewey and the reflexive purpose of growth and education . . . . .	45
3 The principle of continuity in higher education: universities and their publics . .	59
Conclusion. Reconstructing a learning society with Dewey's principle of continuity	81
Notes . . . . .	89