

Table of Contents

Preface	9
---------------	---

Chapter 1

The making of the American Counterculture as a Euro-American phenomenon 17

I. European Nihilism: on the groundings of a radical aesthetics ...	17
1. Uprising of June 1848 and Paris of the “Second Republic”: the beginnings	19
2. From the poetics of modernity to the foundations of Existentialism: the course of the aesthetic and philosophical ideas during 19th century	22
3. On a poetic politics in the 20th century—Within and beyond Nihilism	27
II. Toward American Postmodernism: “the making of a Counterculture”	31
1. The American origins of the Counterculture	31
a. Idealism and Nature: the Romanticism of R. W. Emerson	31
b. Enlightenment and Democracy: from Emerson to Whitman—the genesis of an “American” poetics in the shadow of the war	34
2. On the postmodern spirit: the formation of the American Counterculture or Returning to Nietzsche.....	38

Chapter 2

Toward an aesthetic Counterculture in the American 50s and 60s: Within and against the form 45

I. On the art experiment— “dancing” with the forms: Beboppers, Beatniks, and the visual intervention of literature or Within the form	45
1. The coming of the Beboppers: the improvisational experiment ..	45
2. The passage to the Beat Generation: from the music-poetic improvisation to the visual intervention of literature	47

II. On the conceptual experiment—the political turn: Readymade, Found object, and the language intervention of visual arts or Within and questioning the form	50
1. Questioning the form: Duchamp’s heritage.....	50
2. Beyond Duchamp’s heritage: from the Freudian uncanny to the emergence of the Found object —the language (narrative) intervention	53
III. Within and against the form: from the performative experiments to the Counterculture	56
1. The Black Mountain College and the spirit of happening	56
2. Experimental Theater and Art Activism	58
a. Toward a philosophy of the event.....	58
b. From the events to the theatrical “guerrilla warfare” or when —as in visual arts— the “theatrical act” becomes an “act”.....	60

Chapter 3

Radical American 60s and politicization of the aesthetic: Herbert Marcuse, political Counterculture, and the project of a social transformation of the aesthetic form..... 63

I. A brief synopsis of the American radical 60s: the political trends toward American ’68	63
II. The aesthetic-empirical legacy: from early Marcuse to the architecture of a Great Refusal	68
a. Behind the aesthetic-empirical: on the dialectical project of Herbert Marcuse from 1940s to 1960s	69
b. “Liberation”: Marxism and Phenomenology into dialogue	76
III. From the aesthetic-empirical to the sociohistorical: late Marcuse, Form, and Subjectivity.....	80
1. Negative subjectivity and dialectical analysis: the social subject within and against itself.....	81
2. Form and Subject: the question for a “pacified existence”	90
IV. American 60s and transformation of the Form: Indications (and contraindications) of self-transcendence of the Form (under the experience of the 21st century)	96

Chapter 4

Some methodological comments as an epilogue: why Critical Theory framework in the era of postmodernity? 103

- 1. From the past: on the concept of the social subject in Critical Theory 105
- 2. In the present: about a new sensorium—rehumanizing the social subject 109
- 3. To the future: beyond aesthetics—thinking with Marcuse toward a postcapitalist acting 113

Conclusions..... 121

References..... 129